

Did you know...

South Coast Research and Extension Center (SCREC)

- California is the world's largest strawberry producer, producing almost 90% of the strawberries for the US market.
- The University of California has patented over 39 cultivars of strawberry, many of them originating from the South Coast Research and Extension Center in Irvine, CA.
- Strawberries are a good source of folate and potassium, and a very good source of dietary fiber, vitamin C and manganese.

To learn more about strawberries and other fruits and vegetables grown at the Research and Extension Center, please visit the Center's website.
